Tour:	The current (4th) Detroit Yacht Club building was created by the bold inventors of Detroit, such as Gar Wood (inventor of the hydraulic dump truck) and George Mason (also architect of Masonic Temple). Although the address is Belle Isle, it sits on a man-made 13-acre island. (Where DID you suppose all the dirt for the skyscraper basements went?) At 93,000 square feet, DYC held the title as the largest yacht club building in the world until recently. The club hosted the Gold Cup Hydroplane races, and Johnny Weissmuller, Buster Crabbe, and Jane Caldwell trained in the indoor pool. Royalty and celebrities watched first-run movies in the three-story Grand Ballroom or tried their hand at the pistol range on the 4th floor. Erika has been a member for over 20 years and, like most sailors, can spin a good yarn as she takes you past the artwork and architecture of the famed Detroit Yacht Club.
